

HUDSON TAYLOR ANNOUNCE NEW UK AND EUROPEAN TOUR DATES

Fresh live adventures in support of long-awaited second album release

"This record has taken us three years to make, working on it has brought us all over the world and capturing it all has been so much fun. It's the sounds of Seattle, Nashville, New York and our home town Dublin all in one album." - Harry and Alfie.

Irish brothers Harry and Alfie Hudson-Taylor are thrilled to be heading out on tour to coincide with the release of their brand new album "Lovin' Everywhere I Go". Five years have passed since their debut album - "Singing For Strangers" - which featured the hit singles 'Battles', 'Chasing Rubies' and 'Weapons'. The brothers spent two years on the road in Ireland, the UK and Europe promoting the record.

It's been two years since Hudson Taylor last played in the UK and Europe, when they toured extensively in support of the 'Feel It Again' EP and the 'Bear Creek To Dame Street' mini-album, a part-studio / part-live document which featured highlights from a triumphant home town, sold-out show at Dublin's Olympia Theatre.

The new album was recorded last year in America and Dublin, with producer John Rausch - best known for his work with Taylor Swift and Birdy - at the controls for much of the creative process. "John is a super-genius and now a dear friend" said Harry and Alfie, adding: the title 'Loving Everywhere I Go' is a line from one of our songs, it's about embracing the fresh possibilities that life offers you, and being open-minded to new sounds, people and places."
